As Roberto went searching for contact information on the plume, he got in with the IMT. They alllllllll wanted to help.

It seems that Eric is going to wrangle a solution.

McAteer passed on the information that the company expects it to blow up or BLEVE within 24 hours. The State and FEMA are looking for EPA to provide air modeling, (although it seems to be explosion model rather than air)

I asked them to contact Mike directly, instead of having to make 7 different connections to supply details. That was ignored but they are going to run something. Based on what, I don't know.
